Workshops:

Macbook Air

for optimizing warehouse and sales processes through automation, enhancing overall productivity.

centralizing product data, and automating management processes.

3

Streamlining product journeys and automating processes, especially store deliveries, for increased efficiency.

Designs

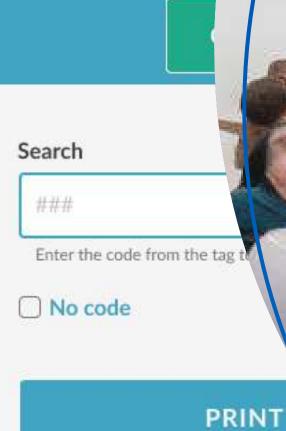

The project began with a thorough design phase, where core objectives and user requirements were established.

12:30

Assign labels

Detailed wireframes and user stories were crafted to visualize the application's layout and functionality. Visual identity was also a key focus during this phase.

Mockup

The creation of a process map allowed us to identify the unique requirements of each service position, which informed the development of dedicated applications.

Testing

Throughout the project, we continuously refined interfaces and functionalities to align with employee needs, emphasizing minimal interaction with the interface for complex tasks.

Coding

The project's development phase featured the utilization of flexible and scalable solutions to accommodate the company's growth and expansion.

Interfaces were aligned with Zebra devices for efficient data entry, and user feedback refined application prototypes.

User testing was instrumental in optimizing data presentation and accessibility

Close collaboration between our Angular development team and the client's backend experts, leveraging the "300DEVS Angular CDK" ecosystem, facilitated rapid development while maintaining brand identity.
